Teaching Team Practice in the Medical Home: Principles and Practice of Collaborative Training

About the Presenters

Susan H. McDaniel, PhD, is Professor of Psychiatry and Family Medicine, Associate Chair of the Department of Family Medicine, and Director of the Institute for the Family at the University of Rochester School of Medicine & Dentistry. Her special areas of interest are behavioral health in primary care, and family dynamics and genetic conditions. Dr. McDaniel has received many awards, most recently the Award for Distinguished Contribution to Education from the Association of Medical School Psychologists in 2004, and the American Psychological Foundation/Cummings PSYCHE Prize in 2007. Dr. McDaniel was the first psychologist to complete the Bureau of Health Professions Primary Care Policy Fellowship in 1998. Dr. McDaniel is the author of many journal articles, and co-editor with Thomas Campbell, M.D. of the multidisciplinary journal, Families, Systems & Health. She co-authored or co-edited 11 books, translated into 8 languages.

Jeri Hepworth, PhD, a family therapist, is Professor and Vice-Chair of Family Medicine and Director of Faculty Leadership Initiatives, University of Connecticut School of Medicine. Her masters and doctoral degrees are from the University of Connecticut, and she completed a fellowship in Executive Leadership for Academic Medicine. Her professional work has focused on families and health, integrating behavioral health into primary care, and collaborative leadership development. For more than 25 years, Dr. Hepworth has taught family physicians, and has trained family therapy students to collaborate with physicians to care for families with health crises and chronic illness. Among her publications, she is co-author of 3 books: Medical Family Therapy, The Shared Experience of Illness, and Family Oriented Primary Care. Dr. Hepworth is a frequent retreat facilitator, consultant and presenter at national and international meetings.

Robert A. Cushman, MD, is Professor and Chair of the Department of Family Medicine at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine and Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center. A graduate of Amherst College and Emory University School of Medicine, he completed his Family Medicine Residency at the University of Rochester/Highland Hospital. During a fourth year there as Chief Resident, he also pursued a yearlong Family Therapy Training Program Seminar and Group Supervision. At the University of Connecticut, he served as Medical Director of the ambulatory training practice and then as Residency Program Director prior to being named Chair in 1997. His work has focused on the integrated biopsychosocial model, strategies for teaching Community-Oriented Primary Care, “translating research into practice” around asthma guidelines, and promoting collaborative practice and leadership models. His current interest is in promoting the Patient (and Family) – Centered Medical Home as an ideal model for the delivery of healthcare services.

Jeffrey Harp, MD, is Associate Professor of Family Medicine & Psychiatry, Team Leader, Family Medicine Practice, at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Tziporah Rosenberg, PhD, is Senior Instructor of Psychiatry & Family Medicine, Behavioral Health Faculty, Family Medicine Practice, at the University of Rochester Medical Center.
